2. I did this homework with help from the book and the professor and these Internet sources: statology

Reminders of things to practice from last week:

Make a data frame `data.frame()` Row index of max/min `which.max()` `which.min()` Sort value or order rows `sort()` `order()` Descriptive statistics `mean()` `sum()` `max()` Conditional statement `if (condition)` “true stuff” `else` “false stuff”

This Week:

Often, when you get a dataset, it is not in the format you want. You can (and should) use code to refine the dataset to become more useful. As Chapter 6 of Introduction to Data Science mentions, this is called “data munging.” In this homework, you will read in a dataset from the web and work on it (in a data frame) to improve its usefulness.

Part 1: Use `read_csv()` to read a CSV file from the web into a data frame:

- A. Use R code to read directly from a URL on the web. Store the dataset into a new dataframe, called `dfComps`. The URL is: “<https://intro-datascience.s3.us-east-2.amazonaws.com/companies1.csv>” Hint: use `read_csv()`, not `read.csv()`. This is from the tidyverse package. Check the help to compare them.

```

Part 2: Create a new data frame that only contains companies with a homepage URL:

- E. Use subsetting to create a new dataframe that contains only the companies with homepage URLs (store that dataframe in `urlComps`).

dfComps$noURL <- is.na(dfComps$homepage_url) urlComps <- subset.data.frame(dfComps, dfComps$noURL == FALSE)
```

- D. How many companies are missing a homepage URL?

```
sum(dfComps$noURL - urlComps$noURL)
```

```
Warning in dfComps$noURL - urlComps$noURL: longer object length is not a ## multiple of shorter object length
```

```
[1] 3323
```

```
#3323 companies are missing a homepage URL
```

Part 3: Analyze the numeric variables in the dataframe.

- G. How many numeric variables does the dataframe have? You can figure that out by looking at the output of `str(urlComps)`.

- H. What is the average number of funding rounds for the companies in `urlComps`?

```
#G
str(urlComps)
```

'data.frame': 44435 obs. of 19 variables:

- I. What year was the oldest company in the dataframe founded? Hint: If you get a value of “NA,” most likely there are missing values in this variable which preclude R from properly calculating the min & max values. You can ignore NAs with basic math calculations. For example, instead of running `mean(urlComps$founded_year)`, something like this will work for determining the average (note that this question needs to use a different function than ‘mean’).

```
#mean(urlComps$founded_year, na.rm=TRUE)
min(urlComps$founded_year, na.rm=TRUE)
```

```
[1] 1900
```

Part 4: Use string operations to clean the data.

- K. The permalink variable in `urlComps` contains the name of each company but the names are currently preceded by the prefix `“/organization/”`. We can use `str_replace()` in tidyverse or `gsub()` to clean the values of this variable:

```
str_replace(urlComps$permalink, "/organization/", "")
```

- L. Can you identify another variable which should be numeric but is currently coded as character? Use the `as.numeric()` function to add a new variable to urlComps which contains the values from the `char` variable as numbers. Do you notice anything about the number of NA values in this new column compared to the original “char” one?

```
str(urlComps)
```

```

funding_total_USD is a variable that should be numeric but is currently coded as a character

```
urlComps$num_funding_total_usd <- as.numeric(urlComps$funding_total_usd)
```

```
Warning: NAs introduced by coercion
```

M. To ensure the char values are converted correctly, we first need to remove the spaces between the digits in the variable. Check if this works, and explain what it is doing:

```
library(stringi)
urlComps$funding_new <- stri_replace_all_charclass(urlComps$funding_total_usd, "\\p{WHITE_SPACE}", "")
```

#This code replaces all instances of "\\p{WHITE_SPACE}" with actual blank spaces

```
Error in stri_replace_all_charclass(urlComps$funding_total_usd, "\\p{WHITE_SPACE}", : object 'urlComps' Traceback:

.      "")
```

N. You are now ready to convert `urlComps$funding_new` to numeric using `as.numeric()`.

Calculate the average funding amount for `urlComps`. If you get “NA,” try using the `na.rm=TRUE` argument from problem I.

urlComps$funding_new <- as.numeric(urlComps$funding_new)
```

```
Warning: NAs introduced by coercion
```

```
mean(urlComps$funding_new, na.rm = TRUE)
```

Sample three unique observations from `urlComps$funding_rounds`, store the results in the vector ‘observations’

```
observations <- sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size = 3, replace = FALSE)
```

Take the mean of those observations

```
mean(observations)
```

```
[1] 1.333333
```

Do the two steps (sampling and taking the mean) in one line of code

```
observations <- mean(sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size = 3, replace = FALSE))
```

Explain why the two means are (or might be) different

Use the `replicate()` function to repeat your sampling of three observations of `urlComps$funding_rounds` observations five times. The first argument to `replicate()` is the number of repeats you want. The second argument is the little chunk of code you want repeated.

The two means are different because the funding rounds selected in each sample may be different each replicate(5, mean(sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size = 3, replace = FALSE)))

```

```
[1] 1.000000 2.666667 1.333333 1.000000 2.000000
```

Rerun your replication, this time doing 20 replications and storing the output of replicate() in a variable called values.

```
values <- replicate(20, mean(sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size = 3, replace = FALSE)))
```

Generate a histogram of the means stored in values.

```
hist(values)
```

Rerun your replication, this time doing 1000 replications and storing the output of replicate() in a variable called values, and then generate a histogram of values.

```
values <- replicate(100, mean(sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size = 3, replace = FALSE)))
```

```
hist(values)
```

Histogram of values

Repeat the replicated sampling, but this time, raise your sample size from 3 to 22. How does that affect your histogram? Explain in a comment.

```
values <- replicate(100, mean(sample(urlComps$funding_rounds, size =22, replace =FALSE)))
hist(values)
```

Histogram of values

#Increasing the sample size from 3 to 22 distributes the values across the x-axis in a more normal dist

Explain in a comment below, the last three histograms, why do they look different?

#Increasing the sample size and replication of that sample results in a more realistic number
